I refer to a recently completed dilapidations case of mine, handled by Andrew Noble.

These premises were an office building in a city centre, and presented a complicated commercial dilapidations business buy out case.

There was no solicitor involvement.

Andrew Noble's Website showed an FRICS (like myself) an Arbitrator, a Barrister at Law, and a specialist in Dilapidations.

Asking Andrew Noble to take on my predicament was one of lifes best ever decisions. Apart from the initial establishment of facts etc I was rarely involved.

His progression through the case was masterful, exhibiting to me (a severe cynical critic) his full use of his skills categories. In my professional career over forty six years of specialist, and general practice experience as a Chartered Surveyor, Andrew Noble stands out like a lighthouse amongst the many prominent and respected persons I have enjoyed coming across.

He has made a great impression and shown his devoted professionalism, the case was concluded as speedily as was warranted with no grounds for any complaint.

Andrew Noble has my full recommendation
